A Summary

The Federal Interagency Committee for the Management of Noxious and Exotic Weeds (FICMNEW) was established in 1994 and initiated collaborative efforts among 17 federal agencies. FICMNEW continues to coordinate federal invasive plant management and address regulatory issues relevant to the United States and territories. Sharing information with various public and private organizations during their 2015/2016 monthly meetings, FICMNEW sponsored 14 webinars on a wide variety of topics, presented two awards, advised on the content of the National Invasive Species Management Plan, responded to invasive plant alerts from citizens, and played an active role in the federal invasive species science community.
